Workshop Focus

Kindergarten Readiness and the Early Years...

Science tells us that the first few years of life are crucial for a child's brain development, and that the quality of development in those early years sets the stage for the child's future. The nurturing that the child receives from all significant caregivers and the learning he or she does in those early years shapes the child's ability to learn, to relate to others, and thus to be successful in school and in life. In short, school readiness begins at birth.

The presenters will bring their expertise in the education field to help us increase our skills as child care professionals, including family, friend and neighbors who care for children, so that we are promoting school readiness and making a positive impact on our children.

* Door Prizes through-out the day.

* Breakfast / Lunch / Desert will be provided.
